

ISSPIT 2017 - Bilbao, Spain, University of Deusto
Auditorio Icaza (La Comercial Building)

DAY 2: Tuesday, December 19th

Plenary talk: Technology and Health

By: Prof. Francisco Lupiáñez-Villanueva

Associate Professor at Open University of Catalonia and Open Evidence Co-founder. Applied Social Scientist and Data Scientist working on both Behavioural Economics and monitoring, evaluation and impact assessment of ICT and innovation (Health 2.0 and eHealth).

Dr. Lupiáñez is an Associate Professor at School of Information and Communication Science Universitat Oberta de Catalunya (UOC) and researcher at Internet Interdisciplinary Institute. PhD in the Information and Knowledge Society, Internet Interdisciplinary Institute (IN3), Universitat Oberta de Catalunya (UOC). Bachelor in Economics, Universidad de Oviedo.

His teaching areas at School of Information and Communication Science are related with Network Society (Information Policies, Information Society, Network Society and New Media). His research field is concerned with the social, economic, cultural and policy issues associated with information and communication technologies specially focused on Innovative Technologies; Networked Citizens; eGovernment; eHealth; eInclusion.

He was a scientific Officer at Information Society Unit - European Commission, DG JRC Institute for Prospective Technological Studies (IPTS) to work on economic evaluation and modelling of Personal Health Systems.

He was a postdoctoral research fellow at The Science & Technology Studies Unit, in the Department of Sociology at University of York (UK).